Explanation

Media Development Loan Fund (MDLF) is a mission-driven investment fund for independent news outlets in countries with a history of media oppression. MDLF provides low-cost capital and technical know-how to help journalists in challenging environments build sustainable businesses around professional, responsible, quality journalism. MDLF depends on the generosity of large private foundations, governmental entities and the public at large to continue its important work. In recent years, the United States economy has suffered through a recession that has impacted all segments of the corporate and not-for-profit world. As individuals struggle to retain their jobs, pay their mortgages, and put food on their tables, as private foundations struggle to find donors from an increasingly cash-strapped public, as governmental entities look to balance budgets and increase streams of revenue, organizations like MDLF that depend upon public support to thrive are suffering greatly. This has impacted all charities' ability to raise funds, to solicit contributions and to generate revenues to undertake exempt programs. MDLF is fortunate to have secured the patronage of one significant contributor, Open Society Institute, that has enabled it to weather the difficult economic times, leaving it with enough funds to support those programs that further its charitable mission. MDLF understands the need to meet the public support test. To that end, it is continually attempting to generate new sources of fundraising, both through broad donor appeals, targeted solicitations, and website exhortations. Internal Revenue Code Regulation 1.170A-9T lists several criteria that indicate facts and circumstances supporting an organization's continued public charity status despite not meeting the 33 1/3 support test. Those criteria are as follows:

- 1 Attraction of public support - in the past few years, MDLF has sought to expand its fundraising capabilities to generate greater public support. The organization's website now directly appeals to net users to invest in press freedom. Specifically, the webpage notes: "It's easy to invest in MDLF's work, providing independent news businesses with the financing they need to hold governments to account, expose corruption and fight for justice for all. There are three ways to invest, depending on the financial returns you seek, the amount you would like to invest and where you are in the world. We can also accommodate special options on a case-by-case basis, and will be pleased to discuss your giving plans with you - send us an email or telephone us direct on +1 (212) 807 1304. These activities target prospective donors who support MDLF's mission and programs."
- 2 Percentage of financial support - the Foundation's public support percentage exceeds 28%. The higher the percentage of support above the 10 percent requirement of paragraph (f)(3)(i) of 1.170A-9T, the lesser will be the burden of establishing the publicly supported nature of the organization through other factors described in paragraph (f)(3), while the lower the percentage, the greater will be the burden. MDLF's support percentage is low because it receives a large percentage of its contributions from a private foundation.
- 3 Sources of Support - MDLF has historically received much of its support from governmental entities, due to tough economic times, the amounts of these donations has been significantly reduced. As the economy rebounds, the hope is that MDLF will see an increase in funding.
- 4 Representative Governing Body - MDLF has a governing body that is broadly represented by members of the community. Each of these factors are significant positive evidence of MDLF's publicly supported nature.

Restricted Assets	Schedule D, Part V, Line IV	In March of 2008, the Board of Directors of the Media Development Loan Fund established the Client Subsidy Fund ("CSF") The Board restricted the use of the assets and earning thereon to meet budgeted shortfall between the Fund's annual operating costs and its annual non-CSF income, with the purpose of supporting the below-market interest rates charged by the Fund on its program-related loans and leases
FIN 48	Schedule D, Part X	In 2009, the Fund adopted the accounting standard on accounting for uncertainty in income taxes, which addresses the determination of whether tax benefits claimed or expected to be claimed on a tax return should be recorded in the financial statements Under this guidance, the Fund may recognize the tax benefit from an uncertain tax position only if it is more-likely-than-not that the tax position will be sustained on examination by the tax authorities, based on the technical merits of the position The tax benefits recognized in the financial statements from such a position are measured based on the largest benefit that has a greater than 50% likelihood of being realized upon ultimate settlement The guidance on accounting for uncertainty in income taxes also addresses de-recognition, classification, interest, and penalties on income taxes, and accounting in interim periods Management evaluated the tax positions for MDLF and each of the consolidated entities and concluded that the Fund had taken no uncertain tax positions that require adjustment to the consolidated financial statements to comply with the provisions of this guidance With few exceptions, the Fund is no longer subject to income tax examinations by the U S federal, state or local tax authorities for years before 2006, which is the standard statute of limitations look-back period
