Return Reference	Explanation
Schedule A, Part II, Line 17	Media Development Investment Fund (MDIF) is a mission-driven investment fund for independent news outlets in countries with a history of media oppression MDIF provides low-cost capital and technical know-how to help journalists in challenging environments build sustainable businesses around professional, responsible, quality journalism MDIF depends on the generosity of large private foundations, governmental entities and the public at large to continue its important work In recent years, the United States economy has experienced an economic downturn that has impacted all segments of the corporate and not-for-profit world Charitable giving has diminished across the not-for-profit sector, as a result, organizations like MDIF that depend upon public support to thrive are suffering greatly This has impacted the organization's ability to raise funds, to solicit contributions and to generate revenues to undertake exempt programs MDIF is fortunate to have secured the patronage of one significant contributor, Open Society Institute, that has enabled it to weather the difficult economic times, leaving it with enough funds to support those programs that further its charitable mission MDIF understands the need to meet the public support test To that end, it is continually attempting to generate new sources of fundraising, both through broad donor appeals, targeted solicitations, and website exhortations Internal Revenue Code Regulation 1.170A-9T lists several criteria that indicate facts and circumstances supporting an organization's continued public charity status despite not meeting the 33 1/3 support test Those criteria are as follows 1 Attraction of public support - in the past few years, MDIF has sought to expand its fundraising capabilities to generate greater public support The organization's website now directly appeals to net users to invest in press freedom Specifically, the webpage notes There are three ways to invest, depending on the financial returns you seek, the amount you would like to invest and where you are in the world These activities target prospective donors who support MDIF's mission and programs 2 Percentage of financial support - the Foundation's public support percentage exceeds 22% The higher the percentage of support above the 10 percent requirement of paragraph (f)(3)(i) of 1.170A-9T, the lesser will be the burden of establishing the publicly supported nature of the organization through other factors described in paragraph (f)(3), while the lower the percentage, the greater will be the burden MDIF's support percentage is low because it receives a large percentage of its contributions from a private foundation 3 Sources of Support - MDIF has historically received much of its support from governmental entities, due to tough economic times, the amounts of these donations has been significantly reduced As the economy rebounds, the hope is that MDIF will see an increase in funding 4 Representative Governing Body -MDIF has a governing body that is broadly represented by members of the community Each of these factors are significant positive evidence of MDIF's publicly supported nature

Return Reference	Explanation
Form 990, Schedule I	MDIF very rarely makes grants to other organizations within the United States as its mission is to support the growth of independent, indigenous media in developing democracies primarily in Eastern Europe, the Former Soviet Union, Asia, Africa and Latin America. In 2013, MDIF made two grants to organizations, Global Voices and the Eurasia Foundation, that promote the same digital and media activism. MDIF deems these grants to be an extension of its own mission. Grants are issued to fund specific program related activities of both charities and so MDIF does not require further grantee reports to document the usage of the funds.
