See Mission statement on Schedule O, pg. 149 The mission of FIRST is to inspire young people's interest and participation in science and technology through innovative programs that build not only their science and technology capabilities and interests, but also self confidence, leadership and life skills. Gracious Professionalism and cooperation (Co-Operation) are among the core values at FIRST, encouraging participants in all FIRST programs to do their best work in a manner that makes everyone feel valued.

If "Yes," describe these new services on Schedule O

If "Yes," describe these changes on Schedule O

The FIRST Robotics Competition (FRC) directly served approximately 72,500 high school students on 2,900 teams. Working with mentors, each team built a robot in six weeks from a kit of common parts, designing it to meet this year's game challenge, "Recycle Rush." Each team participated in one or more 2 to 3-day events at 109 locations, competing for awards for game scores, safety practices, teamwork and other qualitative achievements, stressing the values of cooperation and inclusion. Award winning teams participated in the annual Championship event in St. Louis, MO. The FRC Program provided students with the experience of applying science and technology to achieve a specific challenge under a time constraint (Narrative continued on Schedule O, pg. 149). This experience developed students' technical skills, teamwork and the ability to deal with the satisfactions and disappointments of a real engineering project. Participation in FRC has inspired many students to go on to college, pursuing careers in science, technology, engineering, and math. Many FRC coaches and mentors work in these fields and help the students develop bonds within their communities and connections to the workforce development pipeline. Students in the FRC program are eligible for college scholarships through the FIRST Scholarship Program.

The FIRST LEGO League (FLL) reached approximately 208,000 students aged 9-16 on 26,044 teams in more than 80 countries. This year's challenge was called "How World Class." Teams worked on game challenges using LEGO Mindstorms technology, applying science and engineering to master complex missions to redesign how we gather knowledge and skills in the 21st century. In April 2015, teams from around the world met in St Louis, MO for the FLL World Festival competition and celebration. The Junior FIRST LEGO League (JrFLL) program served approximately 33,000 students aged 6 to 9, on 5,653 teams through a web-based game challenge called "JrFLL Think Tank." (Narrative continued on Schedule O, pgs. 149-150) Participation in FLL and JrFLL has engaged students in a comprehensive experience developing confidence in their ability to address serious issues, enhancing their education in science and math, and exposing them to a STEM career. By progressing through each program and ultimately to FRC, students gain a full suite of technical skills and ongoing encouragement, making it more likely that they will pursue careers in science and technology.

The FIRST Tech Challenge (FTC) served approximately 44,000 youths from ages 12 to 18 on 4,445 teams. Like the FRC Program, FTC is a design and build experience but using a smaller kit and simpler game challenge. In this year's game, "Cascade Effect," each team built a robot and participated in a regional tournament. FTC provides an experience similar to the FRC Program, but is more readily accessible to a broader audience of educators and students, in part because of its lower cost. The FTC experience simulates the excitement as well as the pressure of a real-life engineering project, developing not only the students' technical know-how, but also leadership, cooperation, ability to plan, patience, and teamwork. (Narrative continued on Schedule O, pg. 150) Like the FRC Program, FTC enriches the participating students' ability to deal with the satisfactions and disappointments of a real engineering project. The FTC experience expands students' interest in science, technology, engineering and math, and inspires many to go on to a higher education. Like the FRC participants, students in the FTC program are eligible for some of the college scholarships through the FIRST Scholarship Program. By progressing through each program and ultimately FRC, students gain a full suite of technical skills and ongoing encouragement, making it more likely that they will pursue careers in science and technology.
