The NAACP continues to focus on protecting the civil rights of all persons who suffer discrimination and exclusion. Another area of focus nationwide is an emphasis on youth services with programs such as Back-To-School and ACT-SO. These two programs promote academic excellence and achievement in America's youth, particularly minority students, whose truancy and dropout rates are excessively high. The programs avail community mentors and role models, provide tutorial services and foster competition in arts and sciences for the participant. Additionally, the Association through its network of units, continues to direct America's attention toward the incessant discord in race relations. The units and State Conferences carry the measure and programs to America with emphasis on discrimination in school systems, job and housing markets, lack of equal access to economic opportunities, police brutality and other civil rights violations.
