The Ark is a Maryland State Department of Education accredited preschool program for children 3-5 years old whose families are homeless and/or in the early stages of addiction recovery. The Ark uses an MSDE-approved curriculum. This short-term transitional program provides a stable and consistent environment with a focus on language and social development. Children are assessed at their arrival for their social, emotional and cognitive development. This assessment serves to guide staff in working with children individually to reach age-appropriate development. Through trained staff and volunteer involvement, one-to-one attention can be given to children to stimulate verbal development and encourage appropriate behaviors. The development of these skills is crucial to other more advanced cognitive skills and emotional development. Children move on to a new educational setting when parents stabilize their living situation. The Ark provides a training environment for men and women seeking internships to fulfill academic requirements.

The Club at Collington Square is a community arts and academic-enrichment after-school and summer program serving students 6-14 years old in the Collington Square neighborhood of East Baltimore. During the school year, staff and volunteers tutor youth and assist them with their homework. The program provides a wide array of projects, activities, social skills, and character development. Staff emphasizes social skills, non-violent problem solving, and the development of appropriate peer-to-peer and youth-to-adult relationships. Recognizing the importance of arts in encouraging self-expression, ECSM has developed an arts-based curriculum that involves students, parents, and community members in changing their world. As youth complete their final years of participation in The Club, they are invited back as mentors earning stipends and summer job wages to continue their involvement. The Club offers a wonderful program for working with bright and eager adolescents who need family and resources to achieve their dreams.

Jericho is a year-long program that supports up to 260 male ex-offenders annually in getting and retaining jobs. Participants attend a two-week readiness course to prepare them for employment and to assess their abilities and needs. After they have completed the two-week program, they begin work with a Job Developer who helps them identify and apply for work in an appropriate field. Case Managers help participants with support services, including drug recovery referrals, housing, bus passes, identification, specific job skills training and other key assistance. Over the year, Jericho participants are encouraged to attend weekly mentoring meetings in the evening and to keep in touch with their Case Managers. Case Managers and Job Developers may also visit employees' work sites to determine the success of the employment match. Jericho's program saves the state at least $22,000 per year for each individual who does not recidivate. Furthermore, a low 14% of our clients actually return to jail while over 68% are hired in a first job after incarceration and of those, 60% stay employed throughout their year-long involvement with ECSM's Jericho program.
